

VECA

VECA is a classic, financial and scientific calculator for iPhone and iPad with an on-device assistant that shows exactly how it read your question before the calculator works out the answer.

ABOUT

VECA is a calculator for iPhone and iPad that you can talk to, and that always shows how it read you.

Underneath is a complete instrument: a classic calculator, a full scientific set when you turn the device sideways, and a financial mode with time value of money, cash flows, bonds, depreciation, dates, statistics and RPN entry. It comes in two styles. Glass has frosted keys, a serif number and amber operators. Vintage is a brushed plate with an LCD and printed f and g legends. Both follow light and dark.

Ask a question in plain words, typed or spoken, and the assistant answers first with its reading: "Monthly payment on a $400,000 loan at 6% over 30 years." Each value in it can be changed. Only then does the calculator work out the answer, with the same code the keypad uses; the AI never does the arithmetic. The answer lands on the display, ready for the next step.

Everything runs on the device. Apple's on-device model reads the question, speech is recognised locally, and there are no servers, no account and no tracking.

KEY FEATURES

- The reading: every answer shows how your question was read before anything is worked out.
- An assistant that runs on the device, for typed and spoken questions, with no servers and no account.
- The AI never does the math: answers come from the calculator's own code.
- Two styles, Glass and Vintage, each in light and dark.
- Financial mode: TVM, NPV and IRR, bonds, depreciation, dates, statistics and RPN.
- The full scientific set in landscape.
- iPad layouts with a tape you can drag results from.
